

After completing this course, participants will be able to understand, discuss, and recommend basic sampling approaches using the standard terminology of modern statistics. The student will have a basic understanding of how to use probability and simulation to study precision in sampling-based estimates. Moreover, the student should be able to help develop written summaries of sampling studies and to defend these studies using the logic of scientific sampling.

Prerequisites: A working knowledge of Microsoft Excel. Previous statistics or probability training/experience is helpful, but not required.

Education Level: Introductory/intermediate. The course is not recommended for professionals with extensive experience designing scientific sampling projects, unless a majority of course topics listed above are not well understood.

Course Materials: Each participant will receive a copy of the course proceedings including notes and reference material.

Continuing Education Units: 2.0

What to Bring: A laptop computer with Microsoft Excel, writing tools (pens or pencils), coffee mug and water bottle (to reduce waste). Please wear comfortable clothing appropriate for the prevailing weather.

Registration: $595 (*$495 reduced tuition available for Native American tribes; government employees; nonprofits; students; and NAEP, NEBC, NWAEP members). You may register via the link below or by calling the Northwest Environmental Training Center at 206-762-1976.
